

First look on board Curvelle's superyacht “quaranta”

Wednesday, 3 July 2013

Superyacht developer Curvelle has recently delivered the quaranta, in close cooperation with Logos Marine as principal build contractor. The yacht, which is currently the largest carbon hybrid composite power catamaran in the world, is now enjoying her first cruise with guests on board.

With Lila Lou taking on interior and exterior styling and Incat Crowther onboard as specialist catamaran naval architects, quaranta's design has already proven to be an award-winning one.

Due to a flexible layout, instigated by Luuk V. van Zanten, the main driver behind the project, the vessel's six double cabins can be converted into three VIP suites, six twins, doubles or any combination of these, while still comfortably topping crew space requirements in compliance with strict new crew accommodation regulations.
